FFS SEARCH AND EDIT PIPELINE SEPARATION

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed to fast flexible search and edit pipeline separation. A system suitable for providing a search may include a central controller and at least one search engine. The central controller is suitable for implementing search and edit operations. The at least one search engine is communicatively coupled to the central controller. The central controller performs parallel execution of a search operation and an edit operation through utilization of the at least one search engine.